Bertranges

Back by popular demand, Tonnellerie Nadalié is now offering a barrel made of 100% Bertranges oak. Through this process, we're reviving a piece of our history and invite you to reconnect with us.

The Bertranges forest is the second largest oak forest in France, with thick lush foliage and a landscape marked with limestone plateaus and areas of rolling hills. The centuries old forest dates back to the year 1121 and today covers 10,000 hectares within a large triangle formed by Nevers, La Charité-sur-Loire and Prémery.

The quality, added value, and rarity of the oak trees sheltered in this renowned State forest need no further introduction.

ITS SECRET LIES IN A UNIQUE SOIL

The secret of this forest is hidden in its special terroir. The unique soil is characterized by the abundance of highly silicified limestone pebbles and soft decalcified clays, infiltrated by groundwater. This gives Bertranges oaks the highly desired qualities of an elegant character and delicate tannins. The finesse of its dense and tight grain is the essential partner for long-aging.
